12. Answer: A. Explanation: The correct answer is A. The patient is a 30-year-old female with a 10-year history of rheumatoid arthritis. She is currently on low-dose prednisone (5 mg daily) and has been on this regimen for the past 5 years. She has no other significant medical history and is on no other medications. She is currently experiencing a flare of her disease, with increased joint pain and swelling. The most appropriate management for this patient is to increase her prednisone dose to 10 mg daily for 2 weeks, then taper it back to 5 mg daily. This is because the patient is on a low-dose steroid and has a flare of her disease. Increasing the dose to 10 mg daily for 2 weeks will help to control the inflammation and pain. After 2 weeks, the dose can be tapered back to 5 mg daily. The other options are not appropriate. Option B (increasing the dose to 20 mg daily for 2 weeks) is too high a dose and could lead to significant side effects. Option C (increasing the dose to 10 mg daily for 1 week, then tapering it back to 5 mg daily) is not appropriate because the patient has been on 5 mg daily for 5 years and a 1-week course of 10 mg may not be sufficient to control the flare. Option D (increasing the dose to 10 mg daily for 2 weeks, then tapering it back to 5 mg daily) is the most appropriate management for this patient.
